Priest on fraud charge enters not guilty plea

CHARGE: Finn at Magistrates Court in September.

COURT REPORTER

A HAVERHILL priest is to stand trial at crown court accused of fraud.

Ian Finn, 55, appeared at Ipswich Crown Court on Monday where he pleaded not guilty to an offence of fraud by abuse of position.

The Rev Finn, of Hopton Rise, Haverhill, is the rector of St Mary the Virgin Church.

He is also an honorary canon at St Edmundsbury Cathedral.

He is alleged to have committed the offences over a seven-year period.

The charge relates to the alleged loss of £13,204 from fees paid for church services between June 1, 2007 and March 1, 2014, by false accounting.

Finn spoke only to confirm his name and to plead not guilty.

More than a dozen supporters attended court in the public gallery.

The 55-year-old was charged in August 2014, after first being arrested in March. He made his first court appearance in September last year at Bury St Edmunds Magistrates Court.

Speaking outside that hearing, the priest said he was "entirely innocent".

"I have done nothing criminally wrong and I am confident a jury will clear me of any wrong-doing," he said.

"The last few months have been a dreadful ordeal and I am grateful to all the friends who are supporting me and share my belief I am innocent."

Finn has been suspended from his post since February last year, when an investigation by the Diocese of St Edmundsbury and Ipswich began into alleged "financial irregularities."

Speaking on Monday, Judge David Goodin told Finn that his trial was due to take place in early May.

Finn will continue to be granted unconditional bail until his next court appearance.

I DO BELIEVE IN FAIRIES: Peter Pan takes to the stage at Haverhill Arts Centre tomorrow. And tickets have been selling so fast they've had to put on an extra performance. Full story on page 14.

Friends sing their hearts out in memory of Jess

CHARITY DAY: Buskers for the My Blue Heart appeal.

FORMER classmates of a 14-year-old girl who died from cancer helped raise awareness for her family's charity by busking.

Charity My Blue Heart was started by the family of Jess Gower from Haverhill – who died after a 16-month battle with primary bone cancer in 2010.

Jess' old friends from Linton Village College raised nearly £300 at a busking session in the Grafon Centre, Cambridge, ahead of Christmas, as well as raising awareness of the charity.

A spokesperson for My Blue Heart said: "Thank you to everyone who came over and made donations and shared their own experiences. It was a privilege to talk to you all. Thank you also to everyone who helped on the day in various ways, especially Louisa Pett for making it happen and Guy Flynn and Chris Holman who made the event."

For further information on the charity go to myblueheart.org.uk.

Next step in centre transfer to church

DEBRA FOX

PLANS to transfer a community centre to a church could be finalised by the end of the financial year.

That is the aim of the River of Life Community Church, which is currently involved in an asset transfer for the Chalkstone Community Centre.

Currently owned by St Edmundsbury Borough Council, the building is rented out by a number of local groups, including Haverhill WI and the Befriending Scheme.

Paul Turner, senior pastor at the church, said: "Most people who have spoken to me think it's a really good idea."

Earlier this month, a community consultation was launched with nearby residents, businesses and other stakeholders.

All responses have been positive, Mr Turner said, with the only concern being whether or not those using the centre can carry on doing so.

"Our desire is that we improve the experience for [those who hire], not make it worse," he added.

"We do not want to lose people who are already hiring."

A business plan is being developed by the church, and is expected to be submitted to the council soon.

Once transfer of ownership is complete, a "community management team" will be created to oversee how the building and activities within it will run.

The River of Life Community Church began in 1999, and has since grown to around 130 members.

In the early years, the church met at the centre itself, which is in Strasbourg Square, before the venue became too small.

It currently meets at Castle Manor Academy.

Mr Turner said: "Anything that you want to do here [in Haverhill] that's positive for people you will get support for."

He added: "We would be happy to hear from anybody who has thoughts or ideas or who wants to work with us."

Appeal after industrial estate targeted

THREE attempted break-ins have taken place at an industrial estate – sparking a warning from police.

Over the weekend, criminals tried to enter Meltech, Grayson's Freight Services and AMN Foam, all on Haverhill's Hollands Road industrial estate.

The premises were targeted in a variety of ways, but the offenders failed to get in each time.

Inspector Peter Ferrie, policing commander for Haverhill, is urging the public to get in touch with any information.

He said: "Over the weekend someone has gone up to the industrial estate and tried to break in."

"There have been three attempts to get in, but none of them managed to get in."

At Meltech, offenders climbed onto the roof to try and gain access to the unit, Insp Ferrie said, while entry was attempted at Grayson's Freight by forcing a door.

These incidents follow a break-in at a unit in Homefield Road on January 11, when thousands of pounds worth of musical equipment was stolen.

It is shared by Haverhill Drum Tuition and Case Construction Ltd.

If you have any information about any of the incidents contact Haverhill Police on 101.

You can also call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

COLLISION: Vehicles at the scene of the crash on the A1307 at Linton on Friday.

Lucky escape for motorists in two-car crash on A1307

DRIVERS and passengers escaped unhurt in a collision which destroyed the front of a car.

Emergency services were called to the two-car crash on the A1307 at Linton on Friday.

The incident, on Cambridge Road, happened at around 3pm.

Long queues of traffic built up after a yellow Peugeot 206 and a grey Citroen C3 crashed and partially blocked the route.

One witness told the Weekly News: "I was just on the A1307 coming from Haverhill and I saw what looked like a really bad crash."

They added: "It looked pretty serious when I passed – the front end of one of the cars was really smashed up."

Ambulance crews checked on a female and two young males, who had managed to get out of their vehicles before paramedics arrived.

No serious injuries were reported, and no one had to be taken to hospital.

Cambridgeshire police officers stayed at the scene until traffic flowed freely again.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Inquest to open into man's death

AN INQUEST into the death of a Haverhill man will be opened next month.

Ty Aldrich died on October 21 last year at an address in Beck Row.

Mr Aldrich, of Wellum Close, Haverhill, was 32.

His inquest will be opened on February 2 at the Active Business Centre in Bury St Edmunds.

Views needed at drop-in sessions

HOSPICE services can be shaped by the community at an upcoming event.

St Nicholas Hospice Care is calling on the views of the public with an engagement session at the Burton Centre, Haverhill.

The centre opened in May, and offers a range of therapies to patients alongside other activities.

The drop-in sessions are being held on February 19 between 11am and 2pm, and 4pm and 6.30pm.

Lorry driver, 71, arrested

AN ESTONIAN national has been bailed in relation to immigration offences.

The 71-year-old lorry driver was arrested last Wednesday.

His vehicle was reportedly parked in Hamlet Road.

It is alleged that six adult males, who are said to be from Eritrea, were in the lorry.

The men, who have all been questioned, have been passed onto the Border Force.

The driver will answer Suffolk police bail on February 26.

Winter lunch on offer in village

FAMILIES are being invited to lunch in the Reading Room at Weston Colville on Sunday at 1.15pm. The cost is £15 for adults and £6 for children aged between 5 and 10.

Call for changes to light-up event

COUNCILLORS are calling for changes to the Christmas lights switch on – despite 2014 being one of the most successful nights yet.

The Family Christmas Night was held on December 5 – and for the first time there were no incidents for the police or St John Ambulance volunteers to deal with.

Haverhill Town Council's Leisure and Community committee met on Tuesday – and members discussed how the event can be improved.

Nick Keeble, arts and leisure manager, said: "We really go out to make it successful and safe. In 2015 we are looking at how we can try to build the event."

Work has already begun with Sharon Fairweather, market development officer for West Suffolk, to secure more stalls for the next event, he said.

Traditionally, the evening is also used for late night shopping in the town centre, with some retailers leaving the doors open until 7pm or 8pm.

Speaking at the meeting, Cllr Paul Firman, who runs a market stall, spoke out against the road closures which he said impacted the town's Friday market.

"The town came to a standstill at 1pm," he said. "The shops and the market traders suffered and we didn't prepare for that."

Road closures were put in place earlier than usual on the advice of police, Mr Keeble said.

They are put in place to allow fairground rides and attractions to be set up safely, and in plenty of time.

Cllr Betty McLatchy told members that one High Street store closed earlier than planned due to the noise and smell from the machines.

Councillors were also concerned about the price of some of the fairground attractions, which they say were £4 and £5.

Cllr Maureen Byrne, deputy mayor, called for more festive stalls to be brought in.

And she added: "We have got a year to be a bit more adventurous and look at what we are doing."

Consultation will take place with shops, Mr Keeble said, to see what events would benefit them.

They will answer bail on May 1.

Couple admit theft

A COUPLE have admitted stealing from three town centre shops.

Glen Massie and Kelly Waterman, both of Beaufort Court, pleaded guilty to three counts of theft from a shop and one count of going equipped to steal.

They appeared at Bury St Edmunds Magistrates Court on Tuesday and have been bailed until February 18.

Request for information is denied

A REQUEST to see the salaries of an MP's employees was denied by a Government department.

The Freedom of Information request to the Department of Energy and Climate Change was made on December 11 last year.

It said: "I would like to make a Freedom of Information request regarding the Minister of State for Energy and Climate Change Matthew Hancock."

"Specifically, I would like a list of all staff who work for Mr Hancock within the department, and how much their annual salary is."

A response was published on January 12.

It said that while the information was held by the department, it would be withheld to comply with two sections of the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

One exemption relates to the operation of a ministerial private office. The department balanced public interest with withholding or disclosing the information, it said.

The response added: "We considered this exemption carefully and we have concluded that the public interest falls with withholding the information."

The second exemption related to personal data, and the response said it would be unfair for staff's names and salaries to be published.

Can you help create the Garden of Life?

DEBRA FOX

A PROJECT bringing a community garden to Haverhill needs your help.

St Nicholas Hospice Care is creating the Garden of Life at its outreach centre in the town after winning £50,000 in last year's People's Millions.

The Garden of Life Working Group is meeting next week to discuss the project's future – and you are being invited to take part.

Moira Welham, head of community partnership, said: "We are looking for members of the community to come along if they're interested in the shaping of the garden."

The group has been brought together to finalise the plans, Mrs Welham said, and ensure that the garden is really owned and developed by the community.

A draft plan will be shown to the meeting, and those attending will discuss their thoughts and ideas before making a decision.

It is hoped that work will begin in the weeks following the meeting, with a provisional finish date of March 31.

The garden, will be open for community groups to use, as well as those visiting the centre.

"There are people who really want to give some time and contribute to seeing the garden come to fruition," Mrs Welham said.

"The response has been really positive."

She added: "It is not our garden, it is your garden."

"What do you want to see?"

Raised flower beds will be put in place and, after completion, the garden will be maintained by volunteers.

It will also be used by the hospice for fundraisers and open days.

The meeting is taking place on Monday, January 26, at the centre's Haven Café from 11am until 1pm.

If you would like to attend the meeting and become part of the Garden of Life Working Group, contact the Burton Centre on (01440) 848260.

Become one of 1,000 to quit smoking

SMOKERS trying to kick the habit are being spurred on by tips from Live Well Suffolk.

The organisation is appealing for 1,000 of Haverhill's estimated 5,500 smokers to give up smoking for good over the next three months.

Floyd Croll is the community health coach in the town.

He said: "I hope that sharing a few of my top hints will give people a flavour of the support that I can offer and encourage them to join one of the free stop smoking sessions available in Haverhill."

"Remember, with my help, you're four times more likely to quit than you are if you go it alone."

Top tips from Live Well Suffolk include choosing healthier snacks to substitute cravings, staying hydrated and keeping nicotine replacement therapy at the right dosage.

Those trying to quit are also being encouraged to attempt relaxation and breathing techniques to get through a craving, which normally lasts between two and three minutes.

One-to-one sessions are available in Haverhill with Floyd, and group activities are on offer too.

Success for young trader

A YOUNG market trader is celebrating success on his stall.

Charlie Cook, 22, won a competition to win three months trading on Haverhill market, including a free pitch and insurance.

The entrepreneur who has Autistic Spectrum Disorder, shared his needlework skills with the public, launching a platform for his handmade bags and cushions.

Mum Jo said: "Market traders in Haverhill have been really supportive and helpful, encouraging Charlie in his new business venture."

"The local people and those from all over have been amazing, showing Charlie understanding and kindness when they stop for a chat or buy from his stall."

Now, Charlie has been offered a part-time cleaning job at the town's Sandcastle Play Group to assist with buying materials.

SUCCESS: Charlie at Haverhill's first youth market in 2014.

Bedsits scheme for town centre

A SHARED house with five bedrooms has been proposed for Haverhill town centre.

Planning permission is being sought to convert an office space in Lower Downs Slade to a multiple-occupancy home on the upper floor.

The application has been made by Stan Jones with agent Ickleton Planning Consultancy.

In a planning statement, the proposal is described as a way to rescue a town centre building.

Written by Neil McKillen, chartered town planner, it said: "[The development] will provide two ground floor trading units and affordable rented accommodation in an area where it is badly needed."

"It will contribute, in some small way, to the longer term regeneration of Haverhill town centre and should therefore be welcomed by the local planning authority with an early grant of planning permission."

It is assumed that the bedsits would be occupied by single people.

There are no parking spaces included in the plan, but three cycle spaces would be provided if the application is approved.

A new development of flats near Lower Downs Slade was recently approved with no associated parking, Mr McKillen said, and it is not expected that the occupants of the proposed homes would have cars.

Plans show that each bedsit would have a desk, fridge and sink, as well as its own toilet area.

A communal kitchen room would also be included in the house, with washing machines available to share.

Permission is also being sought to change the use of one of the existing and vacant retail units on the ground floor.

It is hoped that this space would become a cafe or restaurant of around 32 square metres, according to the application.

If approved, a shop would be on one side of the central entrance to the building, and a cafe or restaurant on the other.

"Modest" alterations would be made to the front of the building if the changes of use are approved for the building, Mr McKillen's statement said.

To view the plans, visit westsuffolk.gov.uk.

Chance to pick up free warm winter coat

FREE winter coats are going to be handed out at REACH Community Projects today.

The Haverhill-based charity has been chosen for the event with garments available for all ages, sizes and both sexes.

More than 100 warm coats have been donated by staff at NHS West Suffolk and Ipswich and East Suffolk Clinical Commissioning Groups (CCGs).

Those who cannot afford to buy a winter coat are being encouraged to attend the event, which is running between 2pm and 4pm.

Amanda Lyes, chief corporate services officer for both CCGs, said: "We know that many people are struggling financially, and our staff decided that this was a good way of making a practical contribution to people's health and wellbeing."

Guests to the centre can also enjoy a hot drink and discuss local healthcare services with NHS staff.

The REACH centre is on Gloucester Road.

Get knitting!

I AM writing to ask readers who like to knit to support SPANA's "Big Knit for Vet Kit" fundraising campaign this February and March. SPANA is a charity that provides free veterinary treatment to sick and injured working animals in developing countries across the world.

We are calling on local knitters to make Duncan the donkey, Hattie the horse, Oscar the ox or Clarence the camel and get sponsored while they stitch. The free knitting patterns can be ordered from www.spana.org/knit or by calling 020 7831 3999. Working animals do the jobs of tractors, trucks and taxis throughout the developing world and are relied upon by many of the world's poorest people for their livelihoods, and sometimes their survival. However, without SPANA, there would be no veterinary treatment available for so many of these animals. SPANA's work is only possible thanks to the generous donations we receive from the public and we hope your readers will support this campaign.

Chief executive at SPANA

Access for all

ON Saturday disabled people in the UK were encouraged to visit public venues during Disabled Access Day, but I wonder how much of our rich cultural heritage was inaccessible to them?

I work for an amazing charity called Revitalise. We run the Jubilee Lodge centre in Chigwell, which provides respite holiday breaks for disabled people and carers.

The issue of accessibility is very close to our hearts since we regularly take our guests on excursions to tourist attractions around the country.

We've done a lot of research into this and found some disturbing things. For instance, did your readers know that only a third of the UK's top visitor attractions are fully accessible to wheelchair users and 8 out of 10 disabled people have experienced problems with the accessibility of major high street stores?

And what is the upshot of this? 65% of disabled people have decided against visiting a tourist attraction and 69% have been put off shopping on their local high street due to accessibility concerns or a simple lack of online information. This is a terrible state of affairs.

We think that disabled people have a right to access all that society has to offer, so why should so much of it be off limits to them? Access should be a right, not a privilege, and improving it can be as simple as installing a ramp, taking an awareness course or putting better information online. At Revitalise we think that public venues should be talking to disabled people themselves about how to become more accessible – after all, who better to ask? Please join us in our call to make the UK more accessible. For more information about Revitalise breaks and how to support us, visit www.revitalise.org.uk

Students wow playwright with 'superb' performance

A DRAMA class has received a special visit from a playwright. GCSE students at Samuel Ward Academy in Haverhill had been working on Too Much Punch for Judy when the writer himself, Mark Wheeler, attended their class.

Mr Wheeler showed the budding thespians performance techniques and answered their questions about the play.

Following his work with them, the playwright watched them perform and praised their interpretation as "superb".

The story follows sisters Jo and Judy, from Epping, who are involved in a car crash.

A true story, the play's script is based on dialogue from interviews carried out by Mr Wheeler with Judy and a police officer.

There are 17 students in the class.

Time to get fit and sign up for races

BUDDING athletes hoping to get in shape this year are being encouraged to sign up for local races.

The HaverHalf and Haver10 will return to town in 2015 after celebrating a successful launch last year.

The events, organised by Jack Tappin, raised thousands of pounds for St Nicholas Hospice Care.

Mr Tappin said: "If you're not able to run your help would be welcome as a volunteer, helping to ensure we can again provide successful athletics events in Haverhill and raise thousands of pounds for local charities."

Haver10, sponsored by Sanofi, is taking place on April 12 and the half marathon, sponsored by Real Bodies Health and Fitness, is on October 25.

As a first, a 2k fun run will be offered before the 10k and Haver5, a 5k race, will take place a day before the half marathon.

Those taking part in the 10k can take advantage of a special package including membership to Haverhill Running Club while training at Real Bodies is open to half marathon runners.

A FARMERS' market and a motor show are just some of the attractions coming to Haverhill Market Square in 2015.

The town's market, held on Fridays and Saturdays, celebrated an exciting year in 2014 with its first youth market – but now West Suffolk's market development officer wants to know your views.

Sharon Fairweather has revealed plans to secure a farmers' market for the town this spring – but she and her colleagues are keen to provide what the public wants.

She said: "We are looking to hold more events this year – but what would you like to see?"

The town's motor show will return in July, with the popular youth market coming to town in May in conjunction with Haverhill's schools and town council.

"I would like to see more young people get involved, and we are looking for different stalls that will attract customers," Sharon said.

with starting their own business we are in a position to point them in the right direction."

WORLD RECORD BID: Dan Jones will be running in military boots and carrying a 60lb pack

Marathon man in record attempt

A FATHER is aiming to break a Guinness World Record when he runs the London Marathon wearing military boots and an army rucksack weighing 60lb.

Dan Jones, 35, of Fisher Close, Haverhill, is taking part in the run to raise money for the British Forces Foundation, a charity that boosts morale by providing entertainment for troops.

Mr Jones served in the army in the mid-1990s, as a Grenadier Guard in Chelsea, London, and has a cousin who is a serving soldier, shortly returning to Afghanistan.

Although Mr Jones got used to running with a rucksack (properly known as a bergen) and the boots while he was serving in the army, returning to it proved a challenge.

"I've been training since November, gradually introducing the bergen and boots.

HANNAH MIRSKY

I went out on Sunday and did a 21km run with the bergen," he said. "It's very, very different."

He will be participating in several other competitive runs, including the Cambridge Boundary Run on March 1, before competing in the London Marathon on April 26.

Currently, the Guinness World Record for the fastest marathon run while carrying a 60lb pack is held by Toru Sakurai, a Japanese army instructor.

He completed the run in four hours, 39 minutes and nine seconds during the Tokyo Marathon in 2013.

Mr Jones is hoping to beat this time and has registered his Guinness World Record attempt.

"The British Forces Foundation is a very small charity," he said. "But it helps in a lot of other ways."

Mr Jones, who has an 8-year-old son and a 6-year-old daughter, says his wife and children have been supportive, but a little baffled by his ambition.

"They think I'm a bit mad. They don't really get my reasoning behind it," he said. "But they'll come down on the day."

He hopes that people will pitch in and sponsor him.

"Any donations will be very much appreciated, no matter how small," he said.

Fire crews tackle blaze in bedroom

A COUPLE escaped unharmed after a bedroom fire at their home in Balsham.

Fire crews from Cambridge, Haverhill and Linton were called to the blaze in Old House Road just after 7.20am on Friday.

Smoke was seen billowing from the loft conversion of the semi-detached house.

Station Commander Pete Jones said: "The fire had started in the loft bedroom of this property and it is believed it was burning for a few hours before the residents called 999.

"The top floor of the property is quite badly smoke damaged and the fire has burned a hole into the first floor bedroom.

"The couple who live in the house both got out unharmed.

"This property did have three smoke alarms. However, none of these were working, which is why the residents were not alerted to the fire until they began to smell smoke.

"Luckily, these residents did get out of their house alive and well, but we would like to take this opportunity to remind people to make sure you have a working smoke alarm on each floor of your home and to test it regularly."

The cause of the fire was accidental.

DEBRA FOX

FINAL touches are being made to a new care home ahead of its opening.

Cleves Place, which is in the heart of Haverhill's Chalkstone Estate, will welcome residents gradually in March after months of anticipation.

Sharlene Van Tonder is the new home's manager.

She said: "The pre-opening preparations at Cleves Place are coming along well and we look forward to welcoming residents soon."

Sharlene has worked with Care UK for six months and has spent this time getting to know residents at Place Court and overseeing recruitment for Cleves Place.

They will start moving

Dad of two is jailed for £80k fraud

A FATHER OF TWO who illegally claimed more than £80,000 in benefits has been jailed for 18 months.

Henry Stockings, 56, of Mallow Walk, Haverhill, appeared at Ipswich Crown Court last week for sentence.

Mr Recorder David Pugh said: "This was a sustained fraud committed over a period of 10 years."

The extended time period was an aggravating factor, the recorder said.

Stockings, who had been on bail, was found guilty of fraud following a trial in December.

The trial heard that Stockings failed to notify St Edmundsbury Borough Council of a change in circumstances that would affect his entitlement to council tax benefit between April 2003 and April 2012.

He also failed to make a notification to the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) between March 2002 and January 2009, and again between July, 2010 and July, 2011.

COURT REPORTER

During these dates he claimed £46,115 in income support, £28,832 in housing benefit and £6,099 in council tax benefit, totalling £81,046.

Laura Kenyon, prosecuting, told the court that Stockings signed a declaration to say only he and his two children lived at their Haverhill home but investigators found Frances Brewer, his partner, living there too.

The couple had a joint tenancy agreement for the property, Miss Kenyon said, and Ms Brewer's post was also delivered to the address.

In evidence, Stockings told the court that his partner had not lived with the family for more than 15 years.

She visited the Haverhill property "infrequently", he added.

Marcus Croskill, mitigating, said this was "out of character" for Stockings and he would not appear before the courts again.

WHO AM I?: The session held at Haverhill Library on Saturday.

Help finding your family history

A FREE session offering help and advice with ancestry research attracted budding historians at the weekend.

The event, held at Haverhill Library on Saturday, gave people the chance to quiz the town's family history group on how best to carry out their own investigation.

Alan Bumpstead, of the history group, said: "It went very well and we had a steady turnout throughout the day. "It ranged from people who were just getting started to those who had looked previously but had struggled to get past a certain point.

"It's all about finding the next piece in the jigsaw."

The open day ran from 11am until 4pm.

Changes that help small developments

Ashton KCJ Solicitor Jeanette Dennis, offers some practical advice.

Small developments on farms and village in fill sites have recently attracted much interest due to the varying requirements of local authorities for payments, and contributions towards affordable housing.

In 2013/14, we saw some relaxation of development rules for redundant farm buildings, but that relaxation did not extend to related accessways and services for those buildings. So those changes were not entirely helpful to farmers.

But the changes that came in in December 2014 on payments for developments seem much better news, and with very few "catches".

In a recent review of the statutory guidance, the government has now exempted various developments from these requirements. This means landowners will not have to pay for contributions for general expenditure within an area for open space or sports facilities, for example, where there are developments of 10 houses or less with a combined floorspace of less than 1000 sq. m.

Similarly, no affordable housing contribution can be sought in similar circumstances, although in rural areas a local authority can adopt a lower threshold of 5 houses, but can then only seek a commuted payment for developments of between 6 and 10 houses with any payment being deferred until the end of the project.

Self build projects and extensions to existing dwellings are also now exempt from the requirements to make contributions.

If you're in this position and the decision has not yet been taken, or the section 106 planning obligation has not yet been completed or dated, you should seek an immediate review, and seek deletion of the old money requirements. Local authorities are already agreeing this.

If planning permission has already been granted and the section 106 completed you can make a new application if the development has not been commenced.

Depending upon the circumstances it might be possible to apply to vary an existing permission where some of the development has already been undertaken, but each development would need to be looked at on an individual basis.

Peter Pan ready to take off at town's arts centre

DEBRA FOX

A LONG anticipated pantomime performance will kick off tomorrow – with an extra show added due to popular demand.

The curtain will rise on Peter Pan, performed by Centre Stage theatre company, at Haverhill Arts Centre until January 31.

Directed by David Hart, the show, which follows the journey of the boy who never grows up, promises to be a great show for the whole family.

Around 200 people were placed on a panto waiting list after tickets for the run sold out completely – but the cast came to the rescue with the announcement of an extra performance.

The additional show will be on Wednesday, January 28, from 7pm.

Nick Keeble, arts and leisure manager, celebrated the success of both of this year's pantomimes at Haverhill Town Council on Tuesday.

In December, the professional production of Jack and the Beanstalk saw the highest attendance yet for an arts centre panto.

Upcoming performances for the company later this year include The Vicar of Dibley in March, and Annie in June.

Tickets for Peter Pan are available on (01440) 714140 or haverhillartscentre.co.uk

MP praises success of start-up loan scheme

TWENTY new businesses have been set up in West Suffolk thanks to a Government loan scheme.

New figures have revealed that more than £120,000 has been lent out to 20 people in the region, enabling them to bring their business ideas to life.

The region's MP Matthew Hancock has praised the announcement, hailing it as a way to create more jobs, and maximise potential.

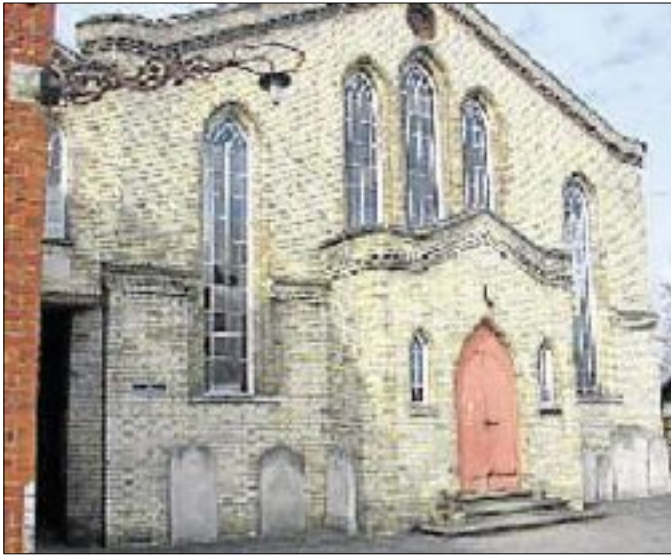

He added: "New businesses are the lifeblood of a healthy local economy, helping to create the growth and jobs that provide security and peace of mind for hardworking taxpayers."

An estimated £130 million has been handed out across the country in the form of start-up loans, creating around 32,000 new jobs.

CHURCH HALL: The hall of the Old Independent Church.

Chartered Architect

Decision due on hall's future

DEBRA FOX

THE future of a church hall will be decided next month.

Planning permission is currently being sought for the hall of the Old Independent Church in Haverhill's Hamlet Road.

The hall, which is Grade II listed, is proposed as the site for three new flats.

Lodged in December, the application has been hailed as the only way to save the hall and bring it back into continued use.

A statement of need said: "For some time the Church have been considering their options and it has taken some time to come to terms with the need to focus their activities on one of the two buildings on economic and suitability grounds.

"Whilst the hall building would have been a more logical and economic choice the Church and Synod feel that the responsibility to maintain the Church building must be properly considered and this application is shaped by this decision."

TRANSFORMATION: Inside the church's hall.

A delegation panel at St Edmundsbury Borough Council was due to decide on the hall's fate last week, but instead deferred the application to the council's planning committee.

The plans, which were first entered in September, were resubmitted just before Christmas.

They ask for two single bedroomed flats, and one three bedroomed flat.

A covered cycle space will be provided for each one bedroomed unit, the plans have said, and two car parking spaces will be available for the larger flat.

Haverhill Town Council and English Heritage have both supported the application.

A statement from English Heritage said that though the proposed changes would "result in a degree of harm" they would not "on balance" wish to refuse the application.

To view the plans, visit westsuffolk.gov.uk.

St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Development Control Committee meets at 10am on Thursday, February 5. The meeting is at West Suffolk House, Bury St Edmunds.

REMEMBER THEM?: One of the missing ornate doors

Bid to trace missing ornate arts centre doors

A SEARCH has been launched to find out what happened to Haverhill Arts Centre's old doors.

Cllr Tony Brown, who represents Haverhill East and Kedington, is looking to recover the doors, which are thought to have been removed in the 1990s when the building was converted.

Cllr Brown said: "I was looking at the new exhibition at the arts centre celebrating 25 years of the town council, and noticed the picture of the front of the building with the doors.

"It took me back to my youth when they were still in place, and it just made me wonder what happened to them when they were removed, as some of the panelling was quite ornate with the date of the opening of the building and Daniel Gurteen's initials cast into them.

"No one I asked seemed to know where they are."

It would be nice to see the doors used in the community again, Cllr Brown added, as they were a big part of the town's history.

CAN YOU SHED ANY LIGHT ON THE DOORS?

IF THE DOORS ARE FOUND, WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE THEM USED FOR?

Consultation on new homes

THERE is still time to comment on a plan for new homes.

An application to build affordable flats at Anglian Place, off Haverhill's Burton End, has been resubmitted by developers following a number of concerns from residents.

Fifteen homes are proposed for the site, which already houses two blocks of flats.

A spokesman for St

Edmundsbury Borough Council confirmed that, depending on the outcome of the consultation, the plans will be decided on by a committee or officers under delegated powers.

The decision is expected in February.

The deadline for the consultation responses is January 26. Visit westsuffolk.gov.uk to view the plans.

I get so much pleasure from helping others'

Could you spare a few hours a week to make a big difference to people's lives?

That is what St Nicholas Hospice Care is asking as it tries to recruit volunteer co-ordinators for its Hospice Neighbours service.

The service, which has been running for four years, sees volunteers visit people facing long term or life-threatening conditions in their own homes to provide companionship and help out with everyday tasks, such as light housework, gardening or shopping.

Hospice Neighbours Co-ordinator Pat Langham-Service

Pat Langham-Service, of Thetford, has been a Hospice Neighbours Co-ordinator for three years and says it is a role she is 'proud' to fulfil.

"There are patients who do not want to come in to the Hospice at the end and, with our support, they are able to stay at home for longer. Hospice Neighbours help to give patients choice and families support," said Pat.

Her role is to look after a team of 10 Hospice Neighbours volunteers. After receiving a referral she contacts the patient to find out what kind of support they need before matching them with a volunteer.

"It doesn't take up much of your time. If you can just spare an hour or two a week it is very worthwhile. You can put as much or as little as you want into it," said Pat.

"You meet lots of new people with your team of Neighbours and you're doing something that's very worthwhile. I get so much pleasure from the help we are giving others."

Phil Hymers, of Bury St Edmunds, joined the Hospice as a reception and Hospice Neighbours volunteer three years ago.

"After becoming a Hospice Neighbour I was asked if I would be interested in taking on the co-ordinator role. I knew it was something I felt I could do," he said.

Hospice Neighbours Co-ordinator Phil Hymers

"I get a great sense of fulfilment out of it and I get a buzz out of volunteering. I think the Hospice is so well regarded locally - many people have had relatives or friends or neighbours who have had some involvement with the Hospice - that it is a cause people are happy to get involved with."

Two of the people Phil has seen as a Hospice Neighbours volunteer have become friends as a result.

"They both said how much they valued my visits. That was very heart-warming to hear," he added.

Pat added: "I enjoy giving something back to the community and helping people. Hospice Neighbours is such a good and worthwhile service to be involved with that I get a lot from volunteering for it."

To get involved – either as a co-ordinator or as a Hospice Neighbour - call Kay Newman, Hospice Neighbours Co-ordinator, on 01284 719638 or go to www.stnicholashospice.org.uk/join-us/volunteering/hospice-neighbours SUPPORT: Cllr Roger André, town mayor, centre, at a dementia awareness evening held in Haverhill in 2014.

Town to become dementia friendly

WORK is under way to make Haverhill a dementia-friendly community.

The Cambridge Care Company is recruiting local people to form an alliance supporting those with the illness.

Nathalie Gilder, manager, is appealing for individuals and organisations to get involved.

She said: "It is about focusing what everyone can bring to the table to help people with dementia."

Becoming a dementia-friendly community would mean improving inclusion and quality of life for those living with the illness in Haverhill.

Steps to achieve this include providing specific activities, building understanding and delivering practical support.

The Cambridge Care Company is looking to hold an initial meeting with all interested parties to discuss how to move the alliance forward.

Cllr Anne Gower is supporting the group.

She said: "I am delighted we have yet another opportunity in Haverhill to make a difference to those people suffering from the impact of dementia in all its various forms.

"We have an opportunity to make our town one which is dementia friendly and to break down the barriers, isolation and despair that sometimes surround this diagnosis."

Mark Watson

"MY life is out of control," says comedian Mark Watson, with more than a hint of melodrama. "Going on tour will be a great relief, I can't get out on the road quickly enough. Performing the show has become the least stressful part of my day. All I have to do is stand up and talk for an hour – that eclipses all my other problems."

By "problems" the scruffy haired Bristolian good-naturedly means parenthood, having recently become a dad times two after his new born baby daughter joined the family.

"The rigours of touring are considerable," he concedes. "But when you're on the road, people are scrambling round at home doing much less glamorous things. When comedians complain about touring, I assume they haven't got families. Certainly there have been times at home when I've been delighted to say, 'You know I'd love to stay and deal with this plumbing crisis, but sadly Bromsgrove awaits!'"

This time around it's Cambridge Corn Exchange that awaits, the 34-year-old's former student stomping ground. It's here that he studied English at Queens' College, nabbed a first, clever boy, and became best mates with fellow Cambridge comedian and poet Tim Key, who was Watson's best man at his wedding.

The pair met at Footlights alongside Downton actor Dan Stevens, after imposter Key, who never studied at Cambridge, just blagged his way into the troupe. They went on to co-direct a revue together.

Sadly, the duo won't be performing a skittish double act littered with Key's ramblings on porn cards (do Google that). This time it's all about Watson, and he'll happily forgive you if you don't

As former Footlights star Mark Watson brings new show Flaws to Cambridge Corn Exchange, Ella Walker discovers that being a dad is far more difficult than doing stand-up

"know who the hell I am," as long as you buy a ticket to his new show Flaws and find out.

This lack of recognition is strange though considering the accolades and achievements that bubble up on Watson's Wikipedia page.

In 2005 he was nominated for Best Newcomer at the Perrier Comedy Awards, won the Panel Prize at The If.comedie Awards and the Time Out Critics' Choice Award in 2006, he consistently sells out shows at the Edinburgh Festival, regularly pops up on the likes of Never Mind the Buzzcocks, Mock the Week, Would I Lie to You and Live at the Apollo, and has written four novels. Impressive, no?

And let's not forget he spends half his life on the radio as well, starring in shows like Mark Watson Makes The World Substantially Better, 100 Million or Bust and Mark Watson's Live Address to the Nation.

"I've now been a professional comedian for 10 years, and it seemed like the natural point to reflect on what I've done," he says, explaining the premise of Flaws. "I couldn't help observing that most of the time has been spent making money from telling people about my personal inadequacies. So Flaws is about how my hapless stage persona has at some point become a hapless human being."

Does he ever find the distinction between his stage and real life blurring? "The stuff I talk about on stage is not that different from my real life. I have a definite shtick – a slightly manic nervous energy which makes something of my incompetence and general failings. But that's actually very similar to how I conduct my life. The effect of that on my mental well-being is ambiguous. If you're performing a version of yourself, it's quite easy to lose track of where your real self begins and ends."

"In the show, I say that in my twenties I felt that it was fun to tell anecdotes about the different ways I'd screwed up. You're allowed to be a shambles in your twenties. But it is sobering to realise that you've got no better as a 35-year-old and that if you don't shape up, you'll be a 50-year-old who has still not got to grips with the basic pillars of life," he explains. "I have two children and a mortgage and still walk this strange tightrope between a seemingly respectable life and complete chaos."

It's hard not to empathise, but he says "the fact that you know others have flaws doesn't necessarily comfort you."

"I'm interested in the whole idea of flaws and fallibility. Perfection is not possible or desirable for humans. The denial of human quirks and flaws is not healthy. In Flaws I try to improve myself and find role models to aspire to. My lack of confidence and self-esteem has powered my shows and my decisions in life. But if you look at the opposite, aggressively confident people, a lot of their qualities are loathsome. In correcting your flaws, you might actually move towards something even worse. Self-improvement is very difficult."

People instinctively feel that stand-up must be terrifying because the performer is so exposed," he adds thoughtfully. "There is no doubt that I find it nerve wracking. Comedians who feel no anxiety have simply become machines. But in a live show, at least you are in control. With TV, what you do might only be reflected in five per cent of the final edit; you're just a cog in the wheel."

"But when it's your tour, matters are purely in your own hands. Yes, you're on your own and vulnerable, but the flipside is that you have autonomy. Even if they hate it, you can say that, 'At least it had integrity. I've successfully performed a show which I wholeheartedly believe in, even if they didn't like it!'"

"It's so satisfying."

Tommy Emmanuel

SADLY, despite the title, An Evening with Tommy Emmanuel at Cambridge Corn Exchange does not entail the Australian guitar virtuoso engaging in a This Is Your Life-type affair. No red book, no Michael Aspel.

We thought that was sad, not to mention misleading, so here's a rundown of the musician's illustrious career to date:

■ He was born William Thomas "Tommy" Emmanuel in 1955 in Muswellbrook, New South Wales, Australia.

■ He picked up his first guitar aged 4 and was taught to play by his mother.

■ By the age of 6 he was working professionally, hearing his hero, Chet Atkins on the radio for the first time when he was 7.

■ School gave way to playing rhythm guitar on the road with his family, before winning a series of talent shows in Sydney.

■ Session work turned into playing lead guitar in The Southern Star Band and Dragon, and touring with Tina Turner (as you do).

■ Tommy eventually went solo, playing everything from jazz, rock and blues, to country, touting his distinctive percussive, 10 finger picking style.

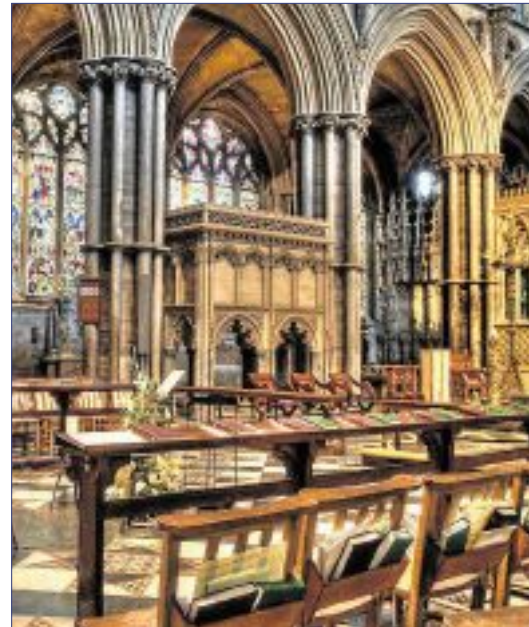

■ He can't read or write music, but is a Grammy nominee and has been given the Certified Guitar

An Evening with Tommy Emmanuel, Cambridge Corn Exchange, Thursday, January 22, at 7.30pm. Tickets £25 from (01223) 357851 / cornex.co.uk.

Growing new trends

THE weather is going to be the telling factor in garden design trends this year, thanks to several years of excessively wet weather and flooding.

So says award-winning garden designer Chris Beardshaw, pictured, co-presenter of BBC2's Great Garden Revival, who is currently planning his forthcoming 'Healthy Cities' show garden with first-time RHS Chelsea Flower Show sponsor Morgan Stanley.

"There's a real awareness of the challenges of the weather," he says. "We've gone through that period where we thought it was going to get hotter and buying phormiums and cordylines and then finding that the winter killed them."

"People are going back to much more resilient planting types. There's a real resurgence in shrubs. The last few decades have been about herbaceous perennials and grasses and I think a lot of people are now much more interested in combinations."

"We often put shrub roses with clematis and an underscore of bulbs to give the three hits of interest."

People are becoming aware that one plant doesn't necessarily cover all bases and are adopting a more refined approach to planting."

Plants such as phillyrea and deciduous rhododendrons, which provide masses of interest through a long season and little maintenance, may become more popular, he predicts, while we are moving away from 'static gardens', low-maintenance, minimalist plots which don't change through the season and are lacking in personality.

"People want the garden to respond to the seasons – and the plants have to grow to that." "The bubble of 'grow your own' has burst," he continues. "After a couple of dodgy weather seasons, most people are now realising that growing fruit and veg is not as easy as it might seem and, as a consequence, are becoming more selective of what they grow."

"Rhubarb is becoming fantastically popular because it is so easy to grow, along with fruit like damsons and gages which can be planted as hedging or put in a wild area of the garden and will largely look after themselves."

"Likewise, with vegetables, we will take into account the amount of time and space our choice uses up. So things like cut-and-come-again salad leaves, which cost a lot in the shops, will continue to be popular as they are easy to grow and give great rewards."

Gardeners seem to be more savvy than previously, perhaps because of the wealth of information available on plant sites on the internet, and want more bang for their buck when buying plants, he says.

"We are keen to see plants working hard, which is perhaps a symptom of gardens getting smaller. We are looking at more high intensity planting."

Purple is likely to be the colour of choice this year, he predicts.

"The colour that everyone wants to be in their garden this year is purple. I think there's an opulence and generosity of purple, when you think of the purple bearded iris or Tulipa 'Black Knight'. But I think a garden filled only with purple would be a rather sombre place. You need a twist. With dark purple tulips, for instance, I would use scillas and white camassias underneath."

People may think that traditional bedding has gone out of fashion, yet Chris notes that according to a recent report from the horticultural industry, the number of people buying bedding plants is at an all-time high.

"However, we're not buying them in the same quantities that we were buying previously, which indicates that we are using them very advisedly in hanging baskets, containers and patio tubs, giving an instant blast of hard-working colour. What we are not doing is filling beds and borders with them in a kind of park bedding scheme way."

"We are becoming much more knowledgeable about the range of bedding plants. The bedding craze is still on but it's about getting much better value out of those plants and being advised to use them in very specific ways."

As for furniture, plastics may have come a long way with robust, stylish all-weather garden sets, along with weather-protective coatings on metal furniture, but Beardshaw says that wood will remain popular.

Gardeners are also becoming more adventurous with lighting, he observes, as more sophisticated outdoor lighting comes on the market.

"Now, lights are easy to install and the power of them is great. You can get different coloured lenses for your LED lights and also buy units that will adjust the temperature of the lens, which will change as natural light levels rise or fall."

CHROME: The Infiniti WX70S Design

Paris Motor Show debut for Infiniti QX70S

DARK chrome is the new black for the Infiniti QX70S Design which had its premiere at the Paris Motor Show last year and is now available in the UK.

Adding a definite bad-boy spirit to the elegant sportiness of the QX70, the new S Design builds on the provocative, design-led ethos of the standard QX70 – the original full-size luxury crossover to embody the athletic dynamism of a sports car.

The antidote to SUV boxiness and blandness, the QX70 in new S Design form features everything that has made the QX70 such a global hit – long bonnet, flowing lines and powerful stance – but with a designer twist for a bespoke new look.

The Infiniti QX70S Design is on sale now at £49,620 for the diesel or £49,775 for the 3.7ltr petrol.

More accurate mpg data due

TALKS have taken place with the motor industry to help give drivers better information about how much fuel a vehicle actually uses.

Roads Minister Robert Goodwill told MPs it was always a "little bit disappointing" to find out how a car performs on the road when compared to the claims contained at the bottom of advertisements.

He said discussions with industry officials examined the potential to make tests, which are designed to indicate a car's performance, more relevant to normal operating conditions.

Speaking in the Commons about the Government's rail and road plans, Mr Goodwill also said it was important to look at the reasons why air quality levels are deteriorating in some areas.

He told MPs that greenhouse gas emissions from motoring are expected to fall by around 20 per cent in 2030 compared to present day levels due to fuel efficiency regulations.

The Tory front-bencher noted it was disappointing that economic problems under the previous Labour administration had led to people not replacing their older cars – which pumped out more pollutants – as quickly.

He said a return to economic growth was also leading to "near-record levels" of vehicle registrations, with more "old, dirty" cars going to the scrapheap and more new cars on the road.

Mr Goodwill went on: "There are, of course, on the strategic road network a number of mitigating factors that we can use such as we're looking at trialling some barriers to try and channel pollution away from communities close to roads."

Labour former transport minister Jim Fitzpatrick said he was very disappointed to hear Goodwill blame "economic woes of the world economy" which affected the previous government as a reason for why air pollution and air quality are deteriorating.

He told the minister: "I think your first answer which was 'we're not quite sure what's causing it, we're going to look at it' was a much better answer. "Would you not agree with that?"

Goodwill said he had been very careful not to blame the previous government but stated the fact that people had not been buying as many new cars for a variety of reasons.

He added: "It's always a little bit disappointing when one looks at the published fuel consumption figures at the bottom of the advert and how they compare with actual use in practice and certainly I've had discussions with the motor industry to see how maybe we can make the test cycle, which is meant to give a clear indication of the performance of the car, more relevant to normal operating conditions."

"While we made tremendous progress in reducing sulphur dioxide emissions because of the way we have cleaned up fuel - we've taken lead out of the petrol - we still have the problem of NOx, which is of course is not in the fuel but in the atmosphere and produced in the engine because of the combustion process and is pretty much linked to fuel consumption.

"So as we have more fuel efficient cars we'll have less nitrogen oxides which, of course, cause air pollution and problems for public health."

Haverhill are knocked out by impressive Newmarket

A CLEAN sweep saw Haverhill's ladies bow out of the Mail on Sunday National Golf Club Classic in the first round after a 5-0 defeat at home to Newmarket.

Two of the matches went down to the 18th hole, but otherwise the Marcella Tuttle-captained Links side were comfortable victors on a waterlogged and muddy course.

Tuttle beat Mary Sail 6&5, Lyn Lambert saw off Norma Humphrey 3&2 and Sarah Reardon triumphed 4&2 against Catie Heathfield.

Jane Monk and Sarah Greenall's matches went the distance, but they won on the final hole against Lyn Fish and Jackie Condon respectively.

Peter McLennan's score of 40 saw him win Haverhill's midweek stableford, which was played over a shortened course.

McLennan's total saw him take Division One as well, finishing four clear of Simon Cousins. Peter Garner was third on 35.

Division Two was won by Steve French on 32. Malcolm Robinson was second on 31 and Roger Hartley took third on countback with 29.

Graham Hepworth's total of 39 was good enough to win Division Three. Mick Couzins was second with 33 and Grant Kingston third on 31.

Fiona Stokes won the juniors' Saturday stableford competition with 33.

James Iron finished as runner-up on 29, one ahead of Dan Walker.

Defender Kersey will strengthen us – Shinn

HAVERHILL Rovers have signed veteran defender Lee Kersey from Maldon & Tiptree as player/manager Michael Shinn looks to add more experience to his defence.

A former Tottenham trainee, Kersey, 35, joins from Maldon & Tiptree, but counts AFC Wimbledon and Barnsley among his former clubs.

He and Shinn were also team-mates at Billericay.

"Lee's a good, experienced player," said Shinn.

"I'm hoping he'll be able to come in and help some of the younger players. He'll be a real asset to us."

Rovers did not have a game last weekend but they are back in action this Saturday at second-from-bottom Ely City.

"We can't forget that we were down in their situation a few months ago," he said.

"We played (bottom club) Diss and it was hard, and the match against Wivenhoe was difficult.

"It's going to be tough. It's a game we'd like to think we can get something out of but we will not be underestimating them."

Marc Abbott is suspended and Paul Abbott is unavailable but otherwise Shinn will have a full squad from which to choose.

Haverhill Borough are also back in action in the First Division this weekend, at home to leaders Long Melford.

■ Five players from Rovers' youth system were included in the Suffolk under-18 squad that lost to Lancashire in Saturday's FA County Youth Cup quarter-final.

Will Gardner, Tyrone Alleyne, Rhys Shulver, Lawrence Heally and James Baughurst all played in the game.

Rovers' community football development officer Peter Betts said: "To have any players represent your county in a national quarter-final is good but to have five is incredible.

"This shows the decision to enter teams into the Eastern Junior Alliance League was the correct one as this is now producing the high quality players it was put in place for."

Unavailable: Marc Abbott is suspended for Saturday's game.
